

Najeeb

Done by: Razan Zuaiter

Project brief:

Najeeb is an Arabic website for reading and selling books and stories in Arabic, English, and French, these books are suitable for children aged from 5 to 15 years. the website is designed carefully with a good UI to attracts children's attention, and taking into consideration the content's quality to become a valuable asset to child-rearing, it is also useful for teachers as a supportive activity to encourage their student to enhance their language and learn new things freely and open discussion about a specific book in their class.

Problem:

Children and teenagers use technology without full awareness, they may suffer misleading or unethical content although their parent's control, they spend too much time online which affect their concentration, attitude and make them lonely or aggressive so they are unable to communicate with their parents and siblings naturally.

Solution:

After making a reconnaissance, we found many parents complaining and fear about the future of their children and worry about their time, unless we can not isolate our children from using technology, we can find a technical solution that attracts them and making them happy while using it, this solution provides safe content and fills with knowledge, it relies on reading because books are the best solution to revive our culture and affect their thoughts and habits.
